

PUBP 1142 - Grand Challenges

Problem Description

Describe a problem worth solving

Situation

Certain communities face shared challenges, like inadequate healthcare or a set of stereotypes. Shared experience can help solve these problems by combining the best strategies across different contexts. Ex: UDL sources coaching and funds from the debate community to help underprivileged youths.

Complication

Every center ends up becoming its own branch. The problem here is

- a. making sure that people with the most direct experiences of their community problems are leading... not just "allies" no matter the intention
- b. consolidating people and info from a really messy set of platforms/backgrounds
- c. 2-sided input evaluation → evaluate and improve the product
→ feedback for users on good solutions
- d. accessibility ~ maximize ease of use,
- e. predicted users and use cases - can it be exploited? will it?

Question(s)

Who should we consult to find out how good community organization is done? :::: How do we package/distinguish our platform? :::: At what point do we transfer control over development to the users, if ever? :::: How do we decide on new features/updates? :::: Why should this platform exist? :::: Is it time to give up?
